Bay council rejects condo variance

By DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis City Council's meeting room was filled to capacity Tuesday night—and so was the outer office.

About 100 people attended Tuesday's council meeting to find out whether a condominium will be built on the site of the old St. Joseph Academy.

The construction of the condominium is being proposed by the owner of the property, Jay LaCoste. LaCoste, a Jackson architect who is a former Bay St. Louis resident, first brought his plans to the attention of the city when he applied to the Board of Adjustments for a height variance.

LaCoste asked that his building be

According to Jay Marsh, Post 77 publicity director, Mauffray was recommended for the award by Fr. cock County United Way since 1974 and former fund raising co-chairman; member, parliamentarian, steering committee member and former secretary of Waveland Civic Association; and treasurer and 17-year member of the Board of Directors of Hancock General Hospital.

He is also a member of the program planning and executive committees of the Harrison-Hancock County Private Industry Council; and 10-year member of the Board of Directors and past statewide president of the Mississippi Electric Power Association Credit Union.

Mauffray is also a member of Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church and is president of its choir and a former parish council member.

He was also ticket chairman for the former St. Joseph's Academy Carnival Association and has been active in fundraising since the organization became the Our Lady of the Gulf Carnival Association. He has also participated in the organization's tableaus and was grand duke of its 1974 ball.

Mauffray and his wife Marie served as king and queen of the 1978 carnival ball organized by St. Ann's Carnival Association in Clermont Harbor.

Also, Mauffray was an active member of the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre for several years and has taken part in stage shows and other fundraising events for organizations including the heart fund.

He is also an active member of Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, Hancock County Democratic Executive Committee, Bay St. Louis Election Commission, Retired Senior Volunteer Executive Committee, Triton Carnival Club and its King Club, Advisory Board of the Hancock County Welfare Department, Bay St. Louis Rotary Club and Executive Committee of Sustaining Membership Enrollment for the Cypress District of the New Orleans Council of the Roy Scouts of America not be granted.

Some of those signatures were added to the petition while citizens waited for the council, apparently believed to be meeting at 7 p.m., to convene the meeting, which actually started at 7:30.

The nine reasons the petition cited included failure by LaCoste to file his request before the Aug. 3 Board of Adjustments hearing on the matter; requesting a variance by procedures not consistent with city zoning ordinances; inconsistency of the building with the architectural style of the neighborhood; insufficient notice to nearby property owners; and several problems with publication of legal notices connected the request, including starting one on Sunday.

The petition also stated that the "request to vary the height limitation from 30 feet to 200 feet is so unreasonable as

Sheriff predicts need for budget bailout

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

Citing machinery and equipment repair for vehicles as the primary cause, Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson predicted Wednesday that his department will be $35,000 to $40,000 over budget by the end of the year.

Chancery Clerk Michael Necaise

Monday the board of supervisors approved a $4,857 interfund loan to Peter-year to a total of about $29,600.

In addition, some $8,000 was raised in citizen contributions this year to purchase a new vehicle for the sheriff's department.

According to Necaise, expenditures for Peterson's office are running about $33,000 to $35,000 per month.

The only income his office receives is from fees for serving summons and subpoenas, which has brought in about $16,700 so far this fiscal year.

Peterson said he expects to be over budget in mandatory operating expenses not in salaries.

The major problem area, he said, is for machinery and equipment repairs for maintenance of automobiles. "We'll probably be $17,000 over the

$5,000 budget allowance for that line item," he said. "We have a lot of old cars, and we had to put three engines in cars, and transmissions."

Peterson also estimated he would be over his $3,800 telephone budget by about $5,000 and over the $2,900 budgeted for prisoner transportation by close to $3,000.

Mayor John Longo said Tuesday.

Tuesday the board of aldermen voted to pay its matching share of the cost for the automatic warning devices which will be installed by the Mississippi

Highway Department.

The City of Waveland will pay $6,275 of the $62,757 total cost for the installation at Waveland Avenue and $4,392 of the total $43,912 cost at Nicholson

In addition, gates will be installed at the Waveland Avenue crossing.

Longo said he hoped the work would be finished before Christmas.

Also Tuesday the aldermen, at the request of the Bay-Waveland Humane Society, voted to increase the fines related to unleashed dogs.

The fines for first offenses were raised from $5 to $25, for second offenses from $10 to $50 and for third and subsequent offenses, from $20 to $100.

In other business:

months," he also noted.

Peterson said he is asking for about a ten percent increase for his 1984-85 budget, including increases in equipment repairs, telephone expenditures and a $50-per-month raise for his 17 employees.

"Hopefully, the board will allot the interest from the money forfeited to Hancock County in July to buy three badlyneeded cars this coming year."

The county netted $215,354 when Circuit Judge J. Ruble Griffin ruled that cash confiscated in an April drug bust in Pearlington should be forfeited to Hancock County.

But Griffin ordered the funds to be deposited in a special account and that the principal could not be spent without further court order, .

Peterson said discussions are being held with Griffin to see if the interfund loans can be repaid from that account.

An alternative, Peterson said, is to repay the loans from the $125,000 in fines levied against the defendants in the Pearlington drug case.

Of that sum, some $85,000 was paid in July with the balance to be paid within 90 days.

Those funds were paid into the county's general fund, Peterson said.

Wastewater plan draws mixed reaction at Monday hearing

By DENA BISNETTE

Officials of the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District recieved a mixed reaction at a two-hour public hearing Monday night.

About 100 citizens attended the hearing, which provided them with an opportunity to make statements or ask questions about a proposed wastewater treatment system known as Alternative Three

Also attending were John Hagen of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and representatives of the Mississippi Bureau of Pollution Control

The hearing started with a presentation in which Ray Eaton of Lewis-Eaton Partnership, the district's engineering firm, explained Alternative Three, a three-phase program calling for upgrading the Bay St. Louis sewage lagoon and Waveland's existing treatment plant, transfering sewage from the Bay St. Louis lagoon to Waveland for treatment and discharging the treated effluent into Edwards Bayou.

Wastewater district officials selected Alternative Three because it is eligible for 75 percent federal funding in the two cities and for 85 percent funding for a collection system for four county areas, including Jourdan River Estates, Garden Isles, Jourdan River Isles and part of Shoreline Park.

Most of the opposition came from people living on or near the Jourdan River; into which Edwards Bayou empties, or from residents of the Edwards Bayou area itself.

Several of those who made statements consider the Jourdan a recreational river and want no more sewage dumped into it or its bayous. At present, treated effluent from Waveland is discharged into Edwards Bayou, while Bay St. Louis puts its wastewater into Watts Bayou, also a Jourdan River tributary.

Several suggestions that the district return to its original proposal, a land spray irrigation system, were also made. However, the EPA has declared that alternative economically unfeasible and ineligible for funding.

About a quarter of the dozen people who made statements and or questioned officials Monday said they were in favor of Alternative Three. Several of them stated that they felt the plan was better than the current system, although they were not in favor of continuous distributions.

tinued dumping into Edwards Bayou.
Others said they felt the district should go ahead and apply for funding before the percentage available for Alternative Three is cut from 75 percent to 55 percent next year.

According to Eaton, funds will be allocated in 1986 if the district can obtain the grant. Designing the system, advertising for bids and similar procedures will take another 18 months, and construction can probably begin around late 1988.

The next deadline in the funding process for Alternative Three is Sept. 15, when a completed plan for Alternative Three must be submitted to the state Bureau of Pollution Control for technical review. When the review has been completed, the Bureau of Pollution Control will forward the plan to the EPA for funding.

New contract to be discussed for Coast Amtrak

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

As a result of unexpectedly high rider use, service of the Gulf Coast Limited may be extended for another year, Delmer Wilcox of Waveland announced this week.

Wilcox, a member of the Tri-State Rapid Rail Transit Commission, said commission delegates will meet in Washington, D.C. with Amtrak officials Aug. 20-the same date that has been set aside as Hancock County Day at the New Orleans World's Fair-to discuss a new contract extending service of the train between Mobile, Ala. and New Orleans, La.

The current contract expires Sept. 30 at the end of Amtrak's 1983-84 fiscal Wilcox said it was originally estimated that if train usage averaged 87 persons per day, it would be a 'breakeven deal.

"But we are averaging 300 riders per day," he said.

According to Wilcox, Congress has already approved governmental participation in extension of train service. "All three states (Mississippi, Louisiana and Alabama) have to go along, of course.

Wilcox credited Mississippi's Congressional delegation with being instrumental in supporting the Gulf Coast Limited.

The three states will have to provide funding if additional monies are needed, but Wilcox said there should be some surplus monies from the initial five-month train operation

"We expected to need $90,000 a month for operating costs, but because of high usage we're down to just about nothing a month," he said.

Wilcox also said that Florida's governor has asked to join the commission and is working on passage of enabling legislation in Washington, D.C.

Florida wants to initiate connecting train service from Jacksonville to Mobile, he said.

"If that happens," Wilcox said, "people here can take the train to go to Disneyland.' John LeBourgeois, technical liaison to the Tri-State Commission chairman in New Orleans, said Wednesday Amtrak has indicated it wants to continue the service "Amtrak is tickled to death with the train and would love to continue this trak 'definitely agreed sometime ago to absolutely run the train for the duration of the World's Fair. Past that time, he said, "The states have to agree they want to do it and partnership," he said, adding that Am-come up with their share of the LeBourgeois said the commission was given about a $45,000 credit on its June payment due to earnings based on high ridership.

'We're supposed to get the June figures next week, and they should be even greater than May's.'

The Gulf Coast Limited carried 8,900 passengers in May and 14,000 in June, he reported.

LeBourgeois said commission officials believe there is sufficient ridership available to make the train feasible even after the World Fair ends, although they expect passengers to decrease.

"There's no such thing as a profitable mass transit operation anymore," he said, "except perhaps for airlines."

"But if we can keep the deficit to a manageable level and are able to demonstrate to legislators that even if they're spending some money they're actually coming out ahead because of the passengers' contribution to the economy of the three states..."

LeBourgeois said the commission hopes to be able to continue the train for a year so that ridership after the World's Fair can be determined.

The commission also hopes to persuade Amtrak to add another train or improve scheduling to provide commuter service for people who live on the Gulf Coast but work in New Orleans.

"These are not three of the wealthier states in the nation," LeBourgeois commented."

"They're all having real bad money problems."

"But it would be a crime not to test it to see if it's a viable permanent mode of transit.'

Wilcox agrees

"It's use it or lose it," he commented. adding that discount fares make the Gulf Coast Limited a good transportation buy.

One-way adult fare from Waveland to New Orleans is $10.50.

A family plan offers a 50 percent discount to spouse and children aged 12 to 21 and a 75 percent discount to children aged 2 through 11.

Senir citizens, military members, handicapped individuals and groups receive a 25 percent round-trip dis-

Amtrak spokeswoman Debbie Marciniak said surplus funds that have already been appropriated by the three involved states will enable the train to continue past the end of September but the exact length of time is not yet

"We're working on that now," she said, "and should know by the Aug. 20 meeting."

Also, Marciniak said, to her knowledge none of the states has actually passed legislation to provide additional funding for the train.

"The closest, we understand, was Alabama, which adopted legislation which was vetoed by the governor but was expected to be changed and reintroduced."

As you know there is a continious need for blood by our citizens and this drawing will be for the Hancock County Blood Bank in corporation with the American Red Cross.

Giaconi replaced Lin Rutherford as blood chairman for the Waveland Legion post since Rutherford is now commander.

The blood drawing will be from 3 to 7 p.m. at the post's home, behind Merchant Bank's Coleman Avenue branch, so mark you calendar for next Wednesday.

Many of us have had our eyes glued to the television screen a little more than normal because of the Olympics.

We are very proud of the Gold Medals already won by American men and women.

It is possible that the Russians felt the competition may have been a little too stiff for them this year. We know there is a political war going on, and that may have just been an easy excuse.

We feel Americans would have taken their share even if the Russians were in competition.

We have enjoyed viewing the many different competitions in the Olympic games.

So here's hoping more gold will be won by Americans.

THE CHOICE IS OURS

A noted economist told a group of Mississippi business leaders a few days ago the nation is becoming more conservative.

And, as it does, suggested Dr. Gene Stanaland, Americans can expect both major political parties to move in a conservative direction.

Dr. Stanaland, a former professor or economics at Auburn University and now a management consultant to some of the nation's greatest corporations, was in Mississippi to discuss the free enterprise system with some 60 public and private school teachers.

The teachers were involved in a week-long free enterprise institute sponsored by the American Enterprise Center of the Mississippi Economic Council.

In his address to business leaders invited to lunch with Dr. Stanaland, the speaker was blunt and direct in his

The fate of the nation, said Dr. Standand, is in the hands of the people. If "people want conservative government, he said, they will have it.

Political leaders, he suggested, spend a great deal of time identifying the direction in which the public is moving, then rushing around to get in front of

Dr. Stanaland said it well: If we want a balanced budget, limited government, and greater opportunities through the American free enterprise system, it's up to us.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mackubin T. Owens is the author of 'The Surest Guardian of Liberty: Hamiltonian Statesmanship and the Creation of the American Union.'

Alexander Hamilton sought a government that would protect liberty and make for good citizens.

Few today would recognize Alexander Hamilton as the guiding force behind the American Union. That honor is now generally accorded to James Madison, the other principal author of The Federalist Papers.

But the decline of Hamilton's reputation may say more about the political tastes of our day than it says about Hamilton's achievement. Dr. Owens examines the critical connection between liberty, virtue and union in Hamilton's statecraft.

Alexander Hamilton

ALEXANDER HAMILTON: LIBERTY, VIRTUE, AND UNION

By Mackubin T. Owens Alexander Hamilton's reputation, more than that any other Founder, has fluctuated according to the political fashions of the day. In the heyday of Jeffersonian democracy, he was held in low esteem. Later, with the triumph of "neofederalism" at the end of the Civil War, he was accorded the highest honors.

Today Hamilton's reputation is ambiguous. While his nation-building skills are admired, he is considered much too "elitist" for our democratic tastes.

But this assessment is unfair to Hamilton, for although he opposed the extreme democratic tendencies of some of his countrymen during the revolutionary period, he was very much dedicated to free and liberal government.

Hamilton, spurred by both his desire for fame and his commitment to principle, wanted to establish a regime strong enough to protect individuals from enemies of their freedom, both foreign and domestic.

But freedom, for Hamilton, meant more than just the absence of domination by domestic majorities or foreign Individual liberty was also the means to the perfection of human nature. Human excellence was thus of necessity connected to liberty and to the protection of man's natural rights.

Such protection was possible only through the creation of a strong central government. The Union, said Hamilton, is "the rock of our political salvation." Creating a strong government required the unceasing efforts of statesmen in order to overcome the people's republican prejudice in favor of absolute liberty. Hamilton feared extreme democrats.

who believed that there should be no limits on the will of the majority.

These extremists believed, in the words of Boston radical Benjamin Hichborn, that "civil liberty (is) a power in the people at large, at anytime, for any cause, or for no cause, but their own sovereign pleasure, to alter or annihilate both the mode and essence of any former government, and adopt a new one in its stead."

Hamilton understood that such a passionate attachment to liberty could not be the basis of good government, without which true liberty is itself impossible.

Hamilton directed his efforts not only toward creating institutions that would provide for a strong government capable of protecting liberty but also toward making Americans into virtuous citizens by making their interest coincide with their duty.

Hamilton hoped to create a virtuous citizenry, without which selfgoverment cannot exist.

Hamilton's enterprise was to make Americans law-abiding, and particularly to attach them to their Constitution. Although the Constitution was their own creation, it bound them by its constraints as long as it was in force.

The legislature could not alter the Constitution, because it was the creature of the Constitution.

To subordinate the Constitution to the legislature would be to establish a government of will, not of law.

Such a government, Hamilton thought, could only culminate in anarchy to be followed by despotism. The success of Hamilton's plan required the establishment of public credit, through which private and public interests were linked. That meant adopting a system for paying all of the young nation's burdensome debt. Part of justice, after all, is fulfilling one's promises. The promotion of virtuous habits.

which Hamilton hoped would result in virtue itself, required that Americans pay their debts, both public and private.

He understood that the nation must set an example, both for the sake of its own honor and reputation, and for the sake of its citizens' character.

Hamilton wished to establish a nation like the United States because it had the ability to accomodate different kinds of men, and offered them the opportunity to achieve as much as their capacities allowed.

Hamilton saw America's promise of equality in its highest sense: the distribution of rewards according to virtue, talent, and industry, not according to conventional distinctions such as birth and wealth.

Liberty meant for him the opportunity to earn rewards in accordance with one's virtue. Liberty was the means of achieving virtue, of perfecting human Hamilton was guided throughout his career by the principles which he put forward in his early pamphlets, and by his desire for fame.

He spoke of self-interest as the spring of human action; anyone who wished to establish a strong and decent regime was required to take this spring of human action into account.

News From The Governor's Office

Gov. Bill Allain

Governor Bill Allain recently contacted a prominent U.S. Senate subcommittee chairman in opposition to proposed federal legislation that he said will be damaging to states' input into decisions regarding nuclear waste disposal sites.

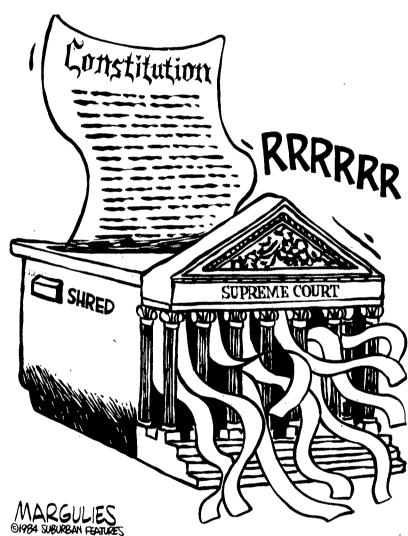

In a telegram to Sen. Pete Domenici (R-N.M.), Governor Allain urged the defeat of an amendment to the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982. The amendment, offered by Sen. Robert T. Stafford (R-Vt.), is scheduled for consideration in Wernington, D.C., before Domenici's Subcommittee on Energy Research and Development of the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources

The Stafford amendment designates four sections of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act as the "exclusive rights" for state participation. Allain said such designation "eliminates the protection we have under other sections of the act and under Mississippi law to voice our objections and to fight any efforts to dump nuclear waste in Mississippi."

Governor Allain also urged Sen. Domenici to defer any consideration of the U.S. Department of Energy's "mission plan," which will be used in determining criteria for selection for the final dumping site for nuclear waste. As originally scheduled, Congressional consideration of the mission plan will occur following hearings involving the affected states.

"To give any consideration to the mission plan at this time is unfair to the states that are proposed as possible dumping grounds. I want to insure that Mississippi's opposition to our selection as a site is made very clear to the President, the Congress, and the Department of Energy," Governor Allain said.

"I believe passage of the Stafford amendment and any premature consideration of the mission plan without in-state hearings would greatly infringe on the rights of affected states and would allow the selection of a dumping site to become a railroading process much to the detriment of Mississippi and other states," Governor Allain said.

SUN EXPOSURE AND SKIN CANCER My daughter spends a lot of time in the summer working on her tan. I am afraid she is asking for trouble. Can exposure to too much sun cause cancer?

The sun acts cumulatively in damaging our skin and may start with overexposure to the sun in our childhood. Because people are living longer and spending more time pursuing outdoor activities, physicians expect to see a greater incidence of skin cancer in the future.

Skin cancer is the most common form of cancer with an annual incidence of 300,000 cases per year. If detected and treated early, however, it is also the easiest to cure. The skin, the body's largest organ, is constantly subject to external abuse by infections and by irritations from clothing, the weather and chemicals in the air. The worst external enemy of skin is the sun.

This summer, there are ways you can prevent the sun from damaging or 'poisoning your skin: 1. Use common sense and avoid overexposure. 2. Wear a sun-screening lotion or cream which contains PABA or one of its derivatives, and if you have very fair skin, wear a broad-brimmed hat and long-sleeved shirt.

3. Stay out of the summer sun when its rays are the most intense at midday, between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The two most common forms of skin cancer are basel cell cancer, a common but slow-growing malignancy, and squamous cell cencer, which is found less frequently. These cancers usually appear on exposed parts of the body—the arms, neck, face and the backs of hands.

Basel cell and squamous cell cancers are characterized by a pale, waxy, pearly nodule that ulcerates and crusts, or by small, red scaly bumps or patches. They usually grow locally and don't spread to other parts of the body.

A third and far more serious form of skin cancer, but one that is relatively uncommon, is malignant melanoma. This form of skin cancer is usually characterized by a rapidly growing black or dark brown mole-like growth that may become ulcerated and bleeds easily if injured even slightly. Because malignant melanoma may spread so quickly, the five-year survival rate is lower than with other types of skin

Older people often develop precancerous lesions called senile or actinic keratoses, which may eventually become cancerous. Although they are non-malignant, these precancers should be examined and treated if they enlarge.

If you have any bump or growth on your skin that changes in size, shape or color or bleeds persistently, you should have it examined by a doctor. Your doctor will continue to examine you regularly for other malignant bumps or growths. Detected early, skin cancers usually can be cured.

This "Matters of Health" was prepared in cooperation with cancer specialists at the University of Mississippi Medical Center.

Boundary change nixed by county school board

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

The Hancock County School District board of trustees voted Monday to deny a request from the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District to adjust district boundary lines.

The request for the boundary change! was originally requested by the Bay "district in July, 1982 via a petition forwarded to Billy Sills, who at that time served as Hancock County superinten-

Current Hancock Superintendent Terrell Randolph said that petition was never formally acted upon by the Hancock trustees

In February, 1984 the Hancock trustees asked Assessor/Tax Collector Edward Murtagh to put in escrow the school taxes collected for a portion of Shoreline Park and some property west of Our Shopping Center in Waveland.

Those taxes had previously been turned over to the Bay district on the assumption that the land became part of the city school district when it was annexed by Waveland in 1972, Randolph

In December, 1955 Hancock County was reorganized into two separate school districts, Randolph explained. Boundary lines for the two districts were adopted in June, 1956.

At that time Waveland chose to join the Bay St. Louis school district.

Subsequently, Waveland extended its corporate limits into areas that were part of the county district.

But Robert S. Reeves, special assistant to the state attorney general, responding to an inquiry this spring from Randolph, said expansion of the Waveland city limits would not automatically expand the Bay St. Louis school district.

The boundary lines can be changed only with approval of both school boards and the Education Finance Commission, he said.

In March Randolph asked the Bay district to refund taxes collected and turned over to the city district.

In April Bay Superintendent J.D. Mc-Cullouch responded that a refund would be 'inequitable...since the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District has this year and for many years in the past provided education to the children residing in the area.... McCullouch said his district would not object if taxes for that area were paid over to the county district for future years.

"However," he said in his April leter, "the Hancock County District will have to assume the responsibility for educating all children presently located in that area."

The city school district also offered an exchange of land with the county district.

"After reviewing the assessed valuation of the areas," Randolph told his trustees, "I recommend we do not change any boundary lines at this time and wait to see what the state does with its school consolidation study.'

"The assessed valuation of the land they want to swap would be considerably less than the area in dispute." Last year, the total tax collections amounted to about $15,000 for the disputed land, but Randolph estimated a considerable increase due to new construction in the area. Also Monday, the Hancock trustees accepted a bid from Stribling Brothers Enterprises Inc. of Jackson for modular classrooms for Gulfview Elementary School and Hancock North Central. The school district will purchase one. single-classroom unit for $24,995 to replace the classroom trailer at HNC that was destroyed in a fire earlier this

-Approved 1984-85 consortium budgets for hearing-impaired and emotionally-handicapped programs.

 Approved emergency certification for Mrs. Charlotte Johnson in educationally-handicapped area and Kathryn Norton as speech/language pathologist.

-Approved travel for cheerleaders to camp at USM in Hattiesburg Aug. 6-9; Randolph to Jackson July 30 and Aug. 6; Randolph and board members to Biloxi Aug. 9 to meet with Attorney General's staff; and Randolph, James Pair, Helen Mestayer and Jeannette Handshoe to Jackson Oct. 18-20 for meeting on implementation of kindergarten programs.

-Approved rerouting of school buses in the Catahoula and Leetown areas to equalize passenger loads.

-Approved payment for a $423 airconditioning unit for Charles B. Murphy Elementary School from school supply funds, with the understanding it will be reimbursed by the school's parentteacher organization.

Board decision to affect 82 students

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

Parents of 82 students who attended Bay St. Louis Separate Municipal School District schools last year are being notified that they will have to send their children to Hancock County schools next year or pay a tuition fee. Bay Superintendent J.D. McCullouch said Wednesday the letters are now being prepared. McCullouch said he has not been officially notifed of the county district's denial of the city district's request for a change in district boundary lines. "But I have taken it on my own to write to the parents so they will know what to expect.' McCullouch's letter states that "All efforts on our part to alter school district lines...have proved futile." "No new out-of-district students will be accepted until such time as building facilities are made available," the let-

"Those out-of-district students who were in attendance (in city district schools) during 1983-84 will be allowed to continue on a tuition basis," the letter states, but notes that transportation is not furnished for out-of-district students.

McCullouch said the tution fee is $300 per year although the actual cost per student is $485.

The state, he said, does provide some funds to the district based on 'average daily attendance.

At the time the two school districts were established, McCullouch said, the area in contention, Section 33, had only three to five students.

According to McCullouch his district served those students and the tax revenues went to the county school district until the land was annexed by Waveland, after which the taxes were forwarded to the city district. "Now," McCullouch said, "that area

Riney selected for internship

Richard L. Riney has been selected by Martin Marietta Corporation to serve a one-year technical operations internship at the company's Aerospace Headquarters in Bethesda, Md.

Riney has worked for the last two years as manager of technology marketing for Martin Marietta's Michoud Division in eastern New Orleans. The Michoud Division manufactures the giant external fuel tanks for the Space Shuttle.

Riney was chosen from among several candidates representing company operations across the country. The intern program is designed to acquaint him with technical and management functions at the company's Aerospace Headquarters.

The intern program began in 1978 to provide employees exposure to activities at the senior management level in Bethesda. The program is limited to one intern each year. Martin Marietta Aerospace employs more than 30,000 people in the United States and nearly 5,000 in New Orleans.

Riney, 27, joined Martin Marietta in New Orleans in 1979 as a systems engineer. He holds a bachelor's degree in electronic engineering from the Ohio Institute, of Technology. Riney will report to Allan M. Norton, vice president of technical operations at the company's aearospace headquarters.

Board rescinds re-registration request

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

The board of supervisors voted Mon day to rescind its request for voter re registration in Hancock County.

"It's fairly obvious we're not ever go ing to have re-registration approved by the U.S. Justice Department under the current status of the law, Board Attorney Walter Gex III told the supervisors Monday.

"I think we could formulate a reregistration plan, but you're talking about a monumental task."

Not only would the county have to get approval from the Justice Department. he said, but a local and private bill would have to be enacted by the State Legislature.

Current federal laws prohibiting the voter registration books in Mississippi from being removed from courthouses, Gex said, would make it difficult to reregister elderly or disabled voters who are physically unable to make a trip to the courthouse.

"You may not ever get some of these people re-registered," he said.

"I don't think the Justice Department would ever approve.'

Gex said he believes after the election commission completes its effort to purge and update the voter registration books, the need for re-registration will be alleviated.

"I think we're getting a 25 to 30 percent better response than jury duty," he said.

Gex suggested the supervisors rescind their re-registration request.

"Otherwise, the Justice Department will deny it and it will be a 'mark' against the county.'

The supervisors requested permission for voter re-registration from the U.S. Justice Department about a year ago following re-districting.

At the time permission was initially requested, letters from the NAACP and the Citizens' Action Committee requesting re-registration were also forwarded to Washington, D.C.

The board voted to reject the request but left LaCoste free to reapply for the variance.

"My plans are to build a gorgeous condominium project on the St. Joseph property," said LaCoste, indicating that he intends to reapply.

He said after a private discussion with Gex that some question remains as to whther a variance is the proper vehicle for his request, since they are usually allowed in hardship cases. "As far as I'm concerned, it would be a hardship for me to cut down all the beautiful oak trees on that property," LaCoste stated.

LaCoste had stated that he wants to build a mid-rise structure because building a condominium with another design would destroy most of the oak trees on the property. He completely redesigned the project before asking for the variance because he wants to preserve the trees.

He said he expects a ruling from Gex on Thursday concerning whether he should reapply for a variance or obtain the height change through another method.

"The sad thing about this is that it has become an emotional issue with the people. They have just heard the height part; they haven't heard about the problem of preserving the oak trees," LaCoste said.

In other business, the board discussed a drainage problem on Second Street, discussed but took no action on the possible demolition or sale of a burnt-out house on Main Street and opened several sets of bids. The bids and other business were tabled until a recessed meeting at 5:30 p.m. Thurs-

Life in small town gives time to reflect

By Brent McMahan General Manager for Corporate Affairs South Central Bell Oxford

The following article is the result of a grant to the Mississippi Press Association by the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities. The opinions expressed are those of the author and not necessarily those of either organization.

America's fascination with youth intrigues me. We yearn to remain a perpetual 30 years old—just wise enough to know all the angles, yet young enough to work the geometry required to make the equations come out.

quired to make the equations come out.

A neighbor told me some time ago she and her husband miss the larger city with all its excitement.

They feel somewhat left out in our town, away from all the goings-on of big cities. They feel they're growing older while their metropolitan friends seem to be getting young—and surely having more fun.

Towns like ours—a small college town—kindle thoughts like that. The town is a pleasant place, filled with white dogwood trees in the spring and golden oak leaves in the autumn. There's a big downtown square where turn-of-the century buildings face each other across a green expanse that holds the county courthouse.

The courthouse has been restored.

It was repainted white to reflect the spotlights that now shine on it at night. During the day old men sit beneath its shady elms. Around it, college kids ride bicycles, their arms and shoulders saddled with book packs, tennis rackets and crew neck sweaters tied loosely around their necks.

Their presence around the square belies the 'town and gown' cliche. Of course, the town is largely provincial, rural and pietistic while the university is expansive, urbane and skeptic. Yet the town and school are infatuated, indeed, enamored with one another. I like that.

The closeness of Oxford and the university stands in marked contrast to many other college communities, where differences openly exist between students and residents. Students freshen the place. With them here, there's a vitality that wanes with their leaving

My brother visited me recently. It was his first to this rural area of our state. He practices law with a big firm in Houston, Tex. and he remarked how different our lives have become since we parted ways some 20 years ago. He has lived in Houston 12 years now, and it is home to him.

"I still feel the pull of the small southern town," he said.

"When you have to drive almost an hour each way to get to and from work, it really gives you reason to envy a five-minute hop to the office."

Still, he won't give it up. The rewards of the metropolis are now flowing his way, and it makes for a fancy way of life.

Despite that—or rather because of it—he has never learned to play tennis the way I have, and never seems to have time to read a good book have time to read a good book.

Trading places with my brother now has much less appeal for me than it did several years ago.

Trying to pinpoint why is not easy.

I come back to the sense of place, the closeness I feel to this small college town, the chance to profit from its slower pace and its hold on the more fundamental values of life. Living here also means being close to my children as they grow up, doing things like playing Peewee football.

It means taking a broken part of some appliance to an old-fashioned hardware store where the clerk fixes the device and says, "No charge."

Living in a town of serenity and youthful exhuberance, smallness and erudition, isolation and transcience, I can't help feeling I've found just what those who do live in big cities will all eventually want and need.

After all, I can read the London Times in the local university library, or sit in on a lecture on computer languages. The young side of me can wistfully watch the beautiful young

South Central placing cables in Bay area

Telephone service additions are underway in the southern portion of the Bay St. Louis exchange.

According to Don Roberts, district manager for South Central Bell, more than 23,000 feet of 1,200-circuit and smaller aerial and buried cable will be placed on this undertaking, plus 2,000 feet of 2,700-circuit buried cable.

"Involved is Central Avenue and adjacent areas. Work is expected to be completed during the fourth quarter of this year," Roberts said.

women who frequent the campus. There's an undeniable puerile appreciation in that, but a certain sense of maturity, too.

Here I have time to reflect on life and place, to share a sense of community, a feeling of belonging, and to fill a role that's important to neighbors, family and friends at each stage of life—no more and no less.

Experts tell us we are all an unfathomable mixture of genes, childhood dreams and parental admonitions. Trivia and tinsel aside, say say, we all basically desire the same things: security, fulfillment and love. They might have added, '...and the time to reflect on life as we grow old.'

Catahoula grant application to proceed

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT After a public hearing on a proposed Small Cities Community Development Block Grant for Catahoula area residents elicited no objections Wednesday afternoon, Hancock County Board of Supervisors A.A. Kellar signed the appropriate documents to proceed with the grant application.

Harvey Nixon, vice president of Moore, Nixon and Associates Inc. of Picayune, explained that officials of a newly-formed Catahoula Water District are seeking a $407,500 Housing and Urban Development grant from the Governor's Office of Community Development to construct a water system that would serve 1,519 residents of the area as well as the Hancock North Central school complex.

Firetower road bids to be opened Aug. 23

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors will open bids at 10 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 23, for work on Firetower

If all goes well, County Engineer Lawrence Seals said Monday, he believes the road could be paved within 60 working days after documents are processed.

Document processing, he said, will take about a month.

Firetower Road resident Michael Hurston attended Monday's meeting to say he and other residents were pleased and relieved to see work on the road progressing, and to ask if construction work would be finished before winter.

"I don't know," Seals responded. "I don't know who will get the bid, what his workload is or what the weather will be." Both Seals and the supervisors assured Hurston that they will do everything they can to expedite the road work.

"I wish I could promise you the road will be finished this fall," Seals said, "but I simply can't."

In another matter, Seals told the supervisors he had received a call from George Pate of the Mississippi Highway Department regarding the possibility of installing flashing signals at the railroad crossing at Port Bienville Industrial Park.

The inquiry originated, Seals said he was advised by Pate, with someone from the Port and Harbor Commission. Seals said some monies might be available, but the supervisors would have to provide about $14,000 in matching funds for the $72,000 total cost for two signals.

The matter was dropped after Supervisor Bert Courrege noted that trains traveling through that area always have flagmen and Board President A.A. Kellar expressed his opposition to the expenditure.

"If we had that kind of money to spend," Kellar said, "I think we should spend it for train signals in Bay St. Louis and Waveland."

EYE SURGERY

"Eyes Over China," a "Nova" film documenting a historic meeting between Eastern and Western ophthalmologists, will be rebroadcast at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 14 on Mississippi Education Television. It was first seen on ETV last December

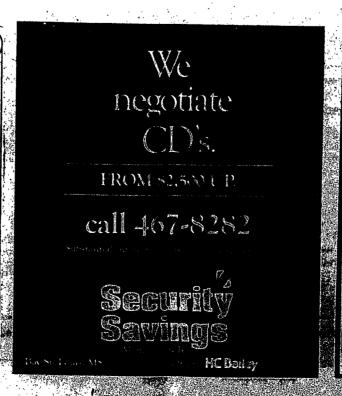

Housed in a DC-8, the Americans' "Project Orbis" boasts one of the most sophisticated eye surgery units in the world: a selfcontained operating room, a recovery room, a video teaching theater and a staff of doctors and nurses charged with the mandate to disseminate the latest techniques in eye surgery.

In 1982, Orbis was invited to the People's Republic of China, a nation with five times the United States' population and one-fifth of its wealth. "Eyes Over China" compares American attitudes and accomplishments in eye surgery. with China's present system and needs in providing eye care to the people.

By Dr. Dennis Tosh

The Future for Real Estate Question: Interest rates have increased in recent weeks, which would seem to indicate less demand for real estate. Would you comment as to what people in the real estate industry foresee for the remainder of this year? R.S.. Prentiss

Answer: Dear R.S.:

Much has been written in recent weeks in regard to what lies ahead for the real estate industry in light of increasing interest rates. This, added to the fact that 1984 is an election year, has caused many people

As with anything else, industry leaders do have opimons as to what is in store for real estate this year.

The Real Estate Research Corporation recently interviewed 180 of the nation's leading real estate investors, lenders, developers and syndicators and found general trends worth watching for in

According to the findings, you should anticipate:

-A sharp increase in new mixed-used centers, especially in suburban rather than urban areas:

-A re-emergence of some midwestern and northeastern cities, including Detroit, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Cleveland, Baltimore, Pittsburg and Philadelphia;

-More home-oriented leisure activities and vacation travel;

-A continuation of rapid growth in fast-food and inexpensive dinner restaurants;

-Growth in telecommunications and informationprocessing facilities, especially in office and hotels;

-Growth (and more regulation) of the timeshare industry;

-A reduced need for warehouse and distribution space due to tightened inventory controls and more automation; and

- More Wall Street involvement in both conunercial and residential real estate.

FIXED RATE MORTGAGES Question: Most of the advertisements in the newspaper explaining the types of house loans available mention adjustable rate mortgages. Are fixed rate mortgages still available? Do you think they will soon disappear? C.S., Net-

Answer: Dear C.S.:

Although adjustable rate mortgages (ARMs) are gaining in popularity, conventional, fixed rate mortgages still make up over half of all mortgage loans made by the nation's savings and loan associations.

This finding is the result of a recent survey conducted by the General Electric Mortgage Insurance Company released late last year.

The survey indicated that by region, 81.5 percent of savings and loan associations located in the South were providing fixed rate plans, 76.5 percent in the Northeast, 58 percent in the North Central area and 67 percent in the West.

In addition, almost two thirds of the lenders responding to the survey said that fixed rate loans comprised more than half of their total loan originations in the previous six months.

About 60 percent of the lenders said that these loans accounted for more than half of all loans originating during the past year.

Results from the survey also show that many lenders (over 25 percent) offered fixed rate mortgages with shorter terms (15 years, for example) in addition to, or instead of, the typical 30-year term. Shorter terms help buffer the risk that is inherent in a fixed rate mortgage. As you would expect, higher interest rates or more discount points are charged on a 30-year mortgage to compened by the lender. However, adjustable rate sate for the added risk assummortgages are still finding their own niche in the market. No doubt as uncertainty continues, fixed rate mortgages will be popular with the lender.

Hinds County remained the only Mississippi county with a 1982 per capita income above the national average, according to county income information recently released by the Bureau of Economic Analysis in Washington, D.C.

The state figure continued to lag behind the national level, with Mississippi's per capita income of $7,725 reaching only about 70 percent of the national income of $11,100.

County per capita figures ranged from a high of $11,149 in Hinds County to a low of $4,262 in rural Issaquena. County.

Mississippi counties with high per capita incomes in 1982 were Warren ($9,253), Jackson ($9,075), Lee ($8,993), Lauderdale ($8,749), Adams ($8,742), Forrest ($8,552), Harrison ($8,533), Jones ($8,396), and Lowndes ($8,202).

The ten counties with the lowest 1982 per capita incomes were Issaquena ($4,262), Carroll ($4,847), Marshall ($4,900), Holmes ($5,246), Kemper ($5,337), Greene ($5,444), Benton ($5,544), Noxubee ($5,611), Tallahatchie ($5,715), and Wayne ($5,897).

In 1982 transfer payments, or income for which no services are currently rendered, surpassed manufacturing as. the largest source of personal income in Mississippi.

Transfer payments, which include such programs as retirement. unemployment, and welfare, accounted for about $3.7 billion of Mississippi's personal income.

This sector comprised almost 18 percent of the state's total income. Fifty of the 82 counties in Mississippi showed transfer payments as their largest source of personal income in 1982.

Manufacturing was Mississippi's second largest source of personal income in 1982; it made up almost $3.5 billion, or about 17 percent, of Mississippi's personal income. In 19 counties, manufacturing was the largest single source of income.

Seven other counties had more income from government than from any other source.

Two counties, Hancock and Clairborne, showed construction as their primary income source.

Dividends, interest, and rent was the largest source of income in three counties (Coahoma, Rankin, and Tunica). Issaquena County was the only county in Mississippi in 1982 in which the major Humphreys County, a rural Delta county, had the highest growth rate for per capita personal income from 1981 to 1982, with a 14.41 percent increase. It was followed by Carroll (12.43), Tallahatchie (11.01), George (9.53), Yazoo (9.52), Hancock (9.33), Noxubee (9.29), Quitman (8.97), Jackson (8.89), and Calhoun (8.39).

Five Mississippi counties had declines in per capita personal income from 1981-1982. These counties and the percentage changes in their per capita incomes were Issaquena (-5.08), Wayne (-1.86), Jefferson (-1.70), Marion (-0.51), and Choctaw (-0.41).

Other counties with low per capita income growth rates from 1981 to 1982 were Jasper and Jones (0.29), Winston (0.94), Clarke (1.00), and Rankin (1.04).

The Concentration of Low-Wage Industries in Mississippi Manufacturing: Wage ratios and location quotients give statistical support to the traditional view that Mississippi is heavily weighted with low-wage industries. A location quotient is a figure which compares state and national employment composition. If the location quotient is greater than 1.00 for an industry, then that industry comprises a larger percentage of state manufacturing employment than of national employment. R&D report shows Mississippi's per capita income trailing national average by 30 percent

For many years, Mississippi's per capita income has lagged behind the national average. The state's per capita income has been as high as 71 percent of the national average in 1978 and as low as 36 percent in 1940. By 1981, Mississippi's per capita income figure had slipped back to about 70 percent of the national level.

Many factors influence the level of per capita income, including elements such as population composition and labor force participation. But a primary contributor to the state's income level is the wage level in manufacturing, since manufacturing is Mississippi's largest employment sec-

Manufacturing employment and income increased rapidly in the past two decades. But the state's manufacturing sector has become heavily weighted with low-wage industry, as reflected in its low average manufacturing wage.

So, while manufacturing growth in low-wage industries has improved Mississippi's income substantially over its past levels, the state's concentration of low-wage industry may be holding income down in comparison to income in other states.

The average wage rate for Mississippi manufacturing has gained ground on the national average, but it remained as low as 75 percent of the U.S. figure in

The relatively low average wage for the state's manufacturing sector is the result of two different elements. First, each manufacturing industry in Mississippi except paper and allied products has an average wage below the national level for that industry.

For example, an average worker in Mississippi's food sector has an hourly wage lower than the national average for workers in food and kindred products.

In addition, Mississippi has a larger proportion of low-wage industries than does the U.S. on average. In 1981, a large part of the state's manufacturing employment was in low-paying sectors, such as apparel, textiles, and food proof $7,414 was about 70 percent as high as the U.S. per capita figure of $10,582. In comparison to the United States level, the state's per capita income hit led point in 1940, at only 36 percent of the national figure.

Mississippi's income as a percentage of U.S. per capita income had improved to a high of 71 percent by 1978, but it had slipped back to about 70 percent by population was in the nonworking age groups (those under age 15 and those over age 65), compared to a national average of 34.0 percent.

these age groups means that, in Mississippi, the working age population is supporting a larger percentage of nonworkers than the U.S. on average. This relationship tends to pull down the state's per capita income.

Mississippi also has a relatively low labor force participation rate compared to the national average.

U.S. Per Capita Income:

Mississippi's 1981 per capita income

There are many possible reasons for Mississippi's continued low position in ticipated in the labor force, while the U.S. as a whole had a 61 percent rate. Again, this means that there are fewer people working to support the nonworkers in Mississippi than in other

The Link Between Per Capita Income and the Manufacturing Sector:

Manufacturing is one of Mississippi's largest contributors to personal income as well as the state's largest employment sector. These two facts make the Mississippi manufacturing wage rate a key element in determining the state's total and per capita personal income.

The decline of farm employment in Mississippi forced the state's manufacturing sector to develop rapidly to replace lost agricultural jobs. The sector's early growth was influenced by many factors, including Mississippi's low labor costs and its favorable business climate. The manufacturing jobs created initially, through many of them were lowwage, helped to increase Mississippi's income level by providing work for persons who had been unemployed.

As a industry continued to develop, though, Mississippi manufacturing came to include a large percentage of low-wage industries, like lumber and wood products, and a smaller percentage of high-wage sectors, like petroleum products or metals. As a result, Mississippi's income improved dramatically over its past levels, but the state's income remained low compared to levels in other parts of the nation.

A Comparison of State and National Manufacturing Wages:

Despite continued gains on the national average, Mississippi's manufac-

Lonnie Ray of Waveland set a state record in the 100-yard butterfly and took the 13-14 year old division individual high point trophy in Mississippi Swimming Association Championships last weekend in Natchez.

Swimming with the Mississippi Gulf Coast YMCA-Pepsi Team, Ray scored first place wins in 100-yard butterfly, 50-yard freestyle, and 200-yard freestyle events.

His record time in the 10-yard butterfly was 55.48 seconds.

He placed second and third in the 110-yard freestyle and 44-yard individual medley, respectively.

Ray, in addition, was a member of the Ocean Springs Y's first place 13-14 division boys medley relay team and the freestyle relay team which placed second.

Some 17 teams participated in the three-day event at Duncan Park Pool. according to Mark Bean, MGCY coach.

Bean's contingent finished third overall with 590 points, bested by Sunkist Swimming Team of Jackson with 1,296 points and Golden Triangle Swim League of Columbus-West Point-Starkville which finished first with 1,547.5 team points.

The MGCY team closed its summer season with the Natchez event.

Bean said workouts for the fall season will begin at the Ocean Springs YMCA pool Sept. 1.

Hancock team faces rebuilding season

By DENA BISNETTE Hancock North Central High School's football team has some rebuilding to do this year, according to head coach Irvin Favre.

"We're going to be a young football team this year, with mixed experience," the coach said. "Almost the entire offense graduated last year, particularly the players in skill posi-

Favre said four offensive players will be back this season, including two guards and a center. However, none of those returning are skill players, or players in positions with a potential to score. "You could say we're basically rebuilding our backfield," he explain-

"We don't have the offensive experience this year to get us out of the hole," he said, explaining that late offensive play saved some of last year's

Some rebuilding may have to be done on the defense as well, although Favre expects it to have a little more depth than the offense because about half of last year's defensive players will be returning this season, including a starter at secondary and two outside linebackers.

That defense may be crucial in Hancock North Central's first game, which will be Sept. 7 against St. Stanislaus. "Naturally we will probably have to depend on them more at first, since they have the most experience. Usually

AWARD WINNER-Melissa Necaise, a ninth grade cheerleader at Hancock North Central, recently received a trophy for being best all-around cheerleader at her school. She is also recipient of a U.S. National Cheerleader Association leadership and merit award, a U.S. Cheerleader Association achievement award and an Academic All-American certificate. She is the daughter of Bernie and Dora Necaise of the Catahoula Community and her cheerleader sponsor is Kay Lovelace. (Staff a team with a well-trained defense can make things happen," Favre said.

"I also agree with the Stanislaus coach that conditioning will be a factor in this first game," Favre added. He hopes to get his team used to the hot, humid conditions often associated with early season games during practice, which starts Monday.

Although it could be a tough contest. Favre said he thinks starting out against Stanislaus could be good for his

"It's a good rivalry, and I expect it to be hard-hitting like it has always been. There will be a big crowd and a lot of excitement," the coach said.

"I'm always kind of excited about opening with a rivalry because it tends to give the kids involved a little more emotion," he added.

In addition to its county rivals, Favre thinks his team faces some tough opponents this year, some of which he feels a school the size of Hancock North Central should not have to face. Under a new districting system that eliminated the old B and BB classifications for smaller schools and now classifies schools according to a five-A system based on school population, Hancock North Central is a AAAA school, one step down from the AAAAA classification denoting schools with highest populations.

"I feel we're in there unjustifiably. We fell into that classification due to an error in counting, and we should be a AAA school. Because we're AAAA, we have to play D'Iberville and St. Martin," he explained.

Favre said D'Iberville generally has about 70 football players and St. Martin consistently has over 50, giving both teams a deeper bench than Hancock North Central, where about 40 players are expected to attend the organizational meeting this year.

The meeting will be held at the Hancock North Central field house at 2 p.m. Friday, and Favre said all players are expected to attend. Late afternoon practices are scheduled to begin Mon-

Value of home tasks continues to increase

Surveys have shown the economic value of a homemaker sometimes referred to as a housewife, is rising.

If a housewife's contribution were counted, the GNP would probably move up 30-35 percent. But because housework takes place outside the business world, it is not often given a dollar value.

Women who work outside the home spend two fewer hours a day in household activities than do their counterparts at home, according to one

Self-esteem can be increased and family appreciation enhanced as the population accepts the worth of the homemaker in economic terms.

Perhaps the most meaningful approach to the homemaker's worth is the replacement cost at home. Courts are now recognizing the at-home role of a spouse in the apportionment of matrimonial assets and child support and alimony payments.

If a husband had to hire outside people to perform household tasks, how much would it cost?

Citizens serve as commentators on public radio

Public opinion polls are playing a significant role this election year as candidates and the media try to understand American voters' views of campaign issues. For a more personal glimpse of voters and their concerns, National Public Radio selected five families to provide regular commentary on election-year topics for its Peabody Award-winning news program All Things Considered.

The program is aired daily at 4 p.m. on Public Radio in Mississippi (PRM), the new eight-station public radio network under the Mississippi Authority for Educational Television.

Chosen with the help of public opinion analyst Louis Harris, the families represent a broad spectrum of political philosophies, incomes and lifestyles. These "citizen commentators." including businessmen, high technology professionals and former factory workers, come from metropolitan areas and will discuss varying concerns shared by millions of Americans.

"By no means do these families represent every facet of American society," says Mike Morgan, PRM's operations manager, "but each family shares many characteristics with a particular large voting group in the U.S. By communicating their thoughts and feelings to public radio listeners, they give a personal dimension to the issues that affect us all in the upcoming elections.'

Computer literacy included in ETV college credit series

A new televised college credit course introducing computer literacy is included in Mississippi ETV's fall 1984 telecourse schedule.

Telecourses are offered by 16 Mississippi colleges and universities for persons who want to study at home while earning college credit or teacher recertification credit or while preparing to take a General Educational Development (GED) test.

"The New Literacy: An introduction to Computers" provides a comprehensive overview of computers-what they are and what they can do. This course is approved for teacher recertification credit as well as college credit. "Understanding Human Behavior" is an introductory psychology course offered for college credit.

Two more courses are approved for teacher recertification. "Teaching Writing: A Process Approach" provides teachers at all grade levels with up-to-date writing theories and practices. "Dealing with Social Problems in the Classroom" looks at ways teachers can deal with student illiteracy, school violence and other problems.

"The GED TV Series" assists persons who plan to take the GED test to earn a high school equivalency certificate. The series helps students brush up on math, reading and English skills. No college registration is required for the course.

For more information, students may call ETV toll-free at 1-800-922-9698, or in the Jackson area, at 982-6280. Plans should be made soon since most colleges hold registration in mid- to late August.

All lessons in each of the courses are approximately 30 minutes long. "The New Literacy: An Introduction to Computers" includes two weekly lessons, at 1 and 1:30 p.m. Saturdays, beginning Aug. 25. The lessons are repeated at 10 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. "Understanding Human Behavior" has two weekly lessons scheduled at 2 and 2:30 p.m. Saturdays, beginning Aug. 25. The lessons are repeated at 3

My Job Helps People. And I Know What A Difference THAT MAKES.

When people ask me how I feel about working for Mississippi Power, I tell them very honestly, "I love it." The reason is that I know it helps people.

I've been working here for 17 years. I handle lots of calls about employee benefits. I keep the personnel files and other important papers. As the Hattiesburg District Manager's secretary, I help him handle a host of things, many dealing with employee matters, annual reviews, vacations schedules, and that sort of thing. Not to mention sorting and routing the mail.

That's a lot of paperwork. But it's really people work. I interview and screen job applicants, for instance. One way or another, most of what I do is about keeping people happy. I know if the people who work at Mississippi Power are satisfied, then they'll help to keep our customers satisfied, too.

There's plenty of hard work involved. But I don't mind. Because what I do means a lot to somebody. And that means a lot to me.

Willie Nelson to headline Fair Thursday and Friday

Willie Nelson, whose country tenor twang and soul-searching lyrics have endeared him to America, will be in concert at the Liggett & Myers Quality Seal Amphitheatre of the New Orleans World's Fair, Thursday and Friday at 8

Nelson, a contemporary national folk hero, was not always surrounded by the sweet smell of success. He began, rather desperately, in the rough and tumble clubs around Ft. Worth, Texas, in the early 1950s. He sometimes played behind chicken wire strung up to keep thrown beer bottles from reaching the

The 51-year-old, thrice married father of five and grandfather of four left the Texas badlands-behind in 1961 and made his first trek to Nashville. He rode there in a second hand Buick bought with the $150 he accepted for selling the rights to "Night Life," which has since been recorded by more than 70 artists and sold more than 30 million

Nelson's career took off for good in 1975, when he released the album, "Red Headed Stranger," and a single written m 1945 by the late Fred Rose, titled, Blue Eyes Cryin' In The Rain," which quickly climed to the number one spot on the charts. The accolades, movie offers and big money began rolling in, just as the hits kept rolling out.

And of course, the country is still reeling from Nelson's collaboration with "The Spanish Prince of Song," Julio Iglesias, on "All The Girls I've Loved." The 12-story-high Liggett & Myers
